Michael, As we have said over the last few months an application to FINRA is not tenable given that we have not been able provide disclosure regarding the beneficial owners of SportBLX , namely Cypress. As you know we have pivoted to a technology model, which we can effectuate without such disclosure. If you are suggesting now that you are willing to make the required disclosures, I will gladly put it on the agenda for the next board meeting. Joe will coordinate the schedule for the next board meeting George

George, I think it would be good to pursue being a broker/ dealer as well.
I trust that like me, you too see plenty of upside there.

Hard to communicate by email some times. So to be clear. I did not know what you meant by designated person. So I asked. When you used blx and SportBLX interchangeably, I wasn't sure what you meant. Then I didn't understand why you said ask my attorney. They were all questions

So we think it's a good idea for you to disclose who the beneficial owners are. We always assumed it was you but we see now that may not be the case. As far as FINRa, as you know we withdrew our application and changed our business plan to a technology model as we discussed in many meetings. Are you suggesting something else?

I don't see how this is a legal issue and why attorneys are involved. Just a question I was asking for clarity. didn't know what you meant by designated person. In your next email you mention employees of blx , shareholders at blx and then a less specific who at SportBLX. Are blx and sport blx the same?

Hi

We simply want to know who involved with sportblx is going to know the ownership of Cypress, which is strictly confidential?

If you still don't understand then please elaborate on what you don't understand or ask your attorney to assist you.
